Dear Ophthalmologists,

It is great that Global Ocular Inflammation Workshop (GOIW) focusing on pathogenesis and prognosis of common intraocular inflammations of global significance will be held in Bali, Indonesia, April 27-29, 2017.

This biannual meeting will take place in conjunction with Asia-Pacific Intraocular Inflammation Study Group and Indonesia Ocular Inflammation and Immunology Society (INOIIS). The meeting will be hosted by INOIIS. In this combined meeting common intraocular inflammations prevalent in Asia-Pacific countries including Vogt-Koyanagi-Harada disease, Ocular sarcoidosis, Ocular tuberculosis and Behcet's disease will be discussed with primary focus on pathogenesis and management of these intraocular inflammations/infection and Diabetic Retinopathy (DR) and Age related Macular Degeneration (AMD). The latter two entities being leading causes of blindness, program related to these entities being organized by retinal and ocular inflammation experts.

The current GOWI meeting is organized with presentations on cutting edge clinically relevant details on the above intraocular inflammations by renowned experts in these fields with allotment of ample time for discussion by the experts and participating delegates. The scientific sessions will be complemented by invited internationally recognized ocular inflammation experts to cover recent and evolving clinical details and clinically relevant translational research. More over evidence based treatment options to prevent ocular morbidity from the intraocular inflammations and infection will be covered with deliberation of prognostic factors which lead to better outcome with the therapeutic interventions.

INOIIS ophthalmology colleagues with expertise on ocular inflammation are instrumental in organizing and hosting the meeting at world renowned venue, Bali, Indonesia. Such venue should facilitate superb collaboration at international level in advancing the field of ocular inflammation with ultimate goal of preventing blindness from ocular inflammations and related disorders.

Dear friends and colleagues,

A warm welcome to all of you attending the 7th Asia Pacific Intraocular Inflammation Study Group meeting in Bali.

This meeting is held in conjunction with the Global Ocular Inflammation Workshop in Bali from 27-29 April 2017. This year, we will be hosting 2 short sessions featuring challenging case presentations, discussed by an expert regional and international panel.

I look forward to yet another informative meeting and hope that the conference will not only provide you with updates on current issues in uveitis, but also increase your awareness of the variety of cases seen in our part of the world. I am sure that you will enjoy your visit to this unique and beautiful Indonesian resort city filled with sunshine and luring beaches.
